Task Force Report: Crime and Its Impact--an Assessment United States. Task Force on Assessment of Crime 1967 An overview of the urban crime problem containing the results of a number of research studies and consultant papers. This volume makes use of the results of three major public surveys to examine the problem of unreported crime, public attitudes toward crime and law enforcement, the characteristics of victims and victim-offender relationships, and a variety of other crime problems. Chapters are devoted to the special problems of the economic burden of crime, white collar crime, and an appraisal of the current national system of statistical accounting on crime and criminal justice matters. There are three appendices prepared by consultants, two methodological notes and a series of tables of crime rates for index offenses by city rank.

Final Evaluation Report for Uniformed Services Family Health Plan Continuous Open Enrollment Demonstration Michael Schoenbaum 2001 The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2000 established the authority for a demonstration program under which eligible military retirees and their dependents would be permitted to enroll in the Uniformed Services Family Health Plan (USFHP) at any time, rather than during a designated 30-day period each spring. The USFHP Continuous Open Enrollment demonstration was conducted at three of the seven USFHP sites, beginning in early 2000. This book assesses the likely impact of continuous open enrollment on beneficiaries, the DoD, and other stakeholders. The authors interviewed USFHP and DoD staff and other key participants involved in rate-setting negotiations, visited each demonstration site, conducted focus groups with enrolled and eligible non-enrolled beneficiaries, and analyzed data on enrollment patterns. The evaluation found no apparent drawbacks for beneficiaries of the continuous open enrollment policy, nor any evidence that it increased enrollment in USFHP. For beneficiaries under age 65, the authors found that a de facto policy of continuous open enrollment already exists because beneficiaries may enroll in TRICARE Prime and then transfer to USFHP at any time. Finally, the authors expect the financial risk to the DoD to be minor, mainly because the current system of calculating payment rates places most risk from adverse selection on the USFHP. The authors recommend that the continuous open enrollment policy be extended to all USFHP sites and be made permanent.

Specialized Patrol Projects 1977 This report is based on both judgmental and empirical assessments of data related to specialized patrols. It covers a review of relevant literature, evaluation reports, and survey information collected from about 400 law enforcement agencies. Contained in this report are selected portions of other documents submitted to the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice under the major heading of "Phase I National Evaluation of Selected Patrol Strategies: Specialized Patrol Operations Under the National Evaluation Program." This report describes general uses and effects of specialized patrols and common assumptions underlying their existence. It is focused on the findings from a sample of projects selected as being representative of the state of knowledge on specialized patrols. The assessment of this sample includes information on success and failure as related to performance and effectiveness. More research is needed before a definitive, final word can be written on the use of specialized patrols. The exact methods and uses of specialized patrols varied from location to location and the existing research and evaluation information on performance is of questionable accuracy and reliability. The various sources of formal and informal information that were collected have been systematically analyzed and displayed for each project under study. This permits the reader to examine both evaluation information and the present weight of informed police opinion on important issues such as arrest performance, deterrence in terms of increases and decreases in crime, the amount of change in arrests and deterrence effected by a unit, and the impact of a specialized patrol on the community it serves. Indicators are also developed and displayed about the collective performance and effectiveness of three general types of specialized patrols: Low Visibility, High Visibility, and Combined High/Low Visibility projects.

Design, Execution, and Management of Medical Device Clinical Trials Salah M.

Abdel-aleem 2009-09-08 An essential introduction to conducting the various stages of medical device clinical trials Clinical research continues to be one of the most vital components of pharmaceutical, biostatistical, and medical studies. Design, Execution, and Management of Medical Device Clinical Trials provides a uniform methodology for conducting and managing clinical trials. Written in a style that is accessible to readers from diverse educational and professional backgrounds, this book provides an in-depth and broad overview for successfully performing clinical tasks and activities. Throughout the book, practical examples compiled from both the author's and other researchers' previous clinical trial experiences are discussed in a sequential manner as they occur in the study, starting from the development of the clinical protocol and the selection of clinical sites and ending with the completion of the final clinical study report. Next, readers are guided through the development of important clinical documents, including informed consent forms, case report forms, and study logs. A careful review of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) and International Conference on Harmonisation (ICH) regulations applicable to medical devices is also featured. Additional coverage includes: Qualification and selection of investigators Study monitoring visits Definitions and reporting procedures for adverse events The use of biostatistical methodology in clinical research, including the use of biostatistics for sample size determination and study endpoints The roles and responsibilities of all members of a clinical research team The book concludes with an insightful discussion of special ethical conduct for human research and challenging issues to consider during the design of clinical studies. A glossary lists important clinical and statistical terms used in clinical research, and an extensive reference section provides additional resources for the most up-to-date literature on the topic. Design, Execution, and Management of Medical Device Clinical Trials is an excellent book for clinical research or epidemiology courses at the upper-undergraduate and graduate levels. It is also an indispensable reference for clinical research associates, clinical managers, clinical scientists, biostatisticians, pharmacologists, and any professional working in the field of clinical research who would like to better understand clinical research practices.

Final Evaluation Report for Uniformed Services Family Health Plan Continuous Open Enrollment Demonstration 2001 The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year (FY) 2000 established the authority for a demonstration program under which eligible beneficiaries were to be permitted to enroll in the Uniformed Services Family Health Plan (USFHP) at any time. We will refer to this policy as "continuous open enrollment." Congress directed that the Department of Defense (DoD) test the feasibility and advisability of providing continuous open enrollment for a two-year period at a minimum of two (out of seven) USFHP sites; submit a report to Congress by March 15, 2001, evaluating the benefits and costs of the program; and make a recommendation concerning whether to authorize continuous open enrollment at all USFHP sites on a permanent basis.

The purpose of the program is to provide a systematic, comprehensive medical protocol for the diagnosis of health problems of Persian Gulf veterans. This report is the third in a series of studies by IOM reviewing the protocols used by the VA and the Department of Defense to diagnose the health complaints of Gulf veterans. The committee reviews and makes recommendations concerning the adequacy of the medical protocol and its implementation by the VA, as well as the VA's outreach and education efforts aimed at informing Persian Gulf veterans and their care providers of the purpose and availability of this program. In addition, the report contains as appendixes the findings and recommendations of the previous reports, as well as those of two related IOM reports on Health Consequences of Service During the Persian Gulf War.

Language in Uniform Helen de Silva Joyce 2015-02-27 Language education and training are an important part of life for some men and women in uniform. Around the globe, police and military personnel are faced with language challenges in their domestic security duties, including interaction with overseas tourists and community members who speak any number of languages. They are also often called upon to manage international roles that require an understanding of languages other than their own, including participating in international policing initiatives and military deployments. Language in Uniform: Language Analysis and Training for Defence and Policing Purposes brings together a collection of papers that reflect the diverse work being done in the often overlooked Language for Specific Purposes (LSP) fields of defence, security and policing. As language learning is increasingly becoming an integral part of life in uniform, this volume extends the theoretical and practical understanding of LSP and acknowledges the ground-breaking work that has been and continues to be done with this approach in language teaching and assessment for defence, security and law enforcement purposes.

Evaluation of Deputation of Dod Uniformed Law Enforcement Personnel by State and Local Governments

Department of Defense 2013-06-11 The objective of this report was to determine whether DoD should issue policy governing the deputation of DoD law enforcement personnel by State and local governments. The evaluation focused on the following sub-objectives; to determine the propriety of using deputized authority in view of statutory and regulatory constraints, if any, to determine whether the ability of DoD law enforcement organizations to perform essential law enforcement functions within their Federal jurisdiction is significantly hampered by a lack of authority to enforce State and local laws, to determine if the DoD law enforcement mission can be met fully and effectively with DoD assets and the assistance of State and local law enforcement agencies as necessary, where deputation exists, to determine if internal safeguards and management controls ensure the proper exercise of the deputized authority; and, to determine if the benefits that flow from DoD law enforcement agencies utilizing State or local law enforcement authority exceed the liabilities that attach to exercising such authority.

Empowerment Evaluation David M. Fetterman 1996 This outstanding group of evaluators from academia, government, nonprofits, and foundations explores empowerment evaluation, a method for using evaluation concepts, techniques, and findings to foster improvement and self-determination. Empowerment Evaluation begins with an in-depth examination of this type of evaluation as it has been adopted in academic and foundation settings. The book then focuses on the various contexts in which empowerment evaluation is conducted, ranging from resistant environments (in which significant effort is required to move from passive-compliance orientations) to responsive environments (that already have a tradition of self-determination and community organizing). Interesting highlights concerning the role empowerment evaluation has played in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services' substance abuse prevention programs are detailed throughout the book. The contributors also provide down-to-earth tools and technical assistance needed to conduct empowerment evaluation. This volume concludes with themes that emerge from the chapters and recommendations concerning next steps. This serves to strengthen the links between empowerment evaluation and community capacity building. empow
