At the Desert's Green Edge Amadeo M. Rea 1997-11 The Akimel O'odham, or Pima Indians, of the northern Sonoran Desert continue to make their home along Arizona's Gila River despite the alarming degradation of their habitat that has occurred over the past century. The oldest living Pimas can recall a lush riparian ecosystem and still recite more than two hundred names for plants in their environment, but they are the last generation who grew up subsisting on cultivated native crops or wild-foraged plants. Ethnobiologist Amadeo M. Rea has written the first complete ethnobotany of the Gila River Pima and has done so from the perspective of the Pimas themselves. At the Desert's Green Edge weaves the Pima view of the plants found in their environment with memories of their own history and culture, creating a monumental testament to their traditions and way of life. Rea first discusses the Piman people, environment, and language, then proceeds to share their botanical knowledge in entries for 240 plants that systematically cover information on economic botany, folk taxonomy, and linguistics. The entries are organized according to Pima life-form categories such as plants growing in water, eaten greens, and planted fruit trees. All are anecdotal, conveying the author's long personal involvement with the Pimas, whether teaching in their schools or learning from them in conversations and interviews. At the Desert's Green Edge is an archive of otherwise unavailable plant lore that will become a benchmark for botanists and anthropologists. Enhanced by more than one hundred brush paintings of plants, it is written to be equally useful to nonspecialists so that the Pimas themselves can turn to it as a resource regarding their former lifeways. More than an encyclopedia of facts, it is the Pimas' own story, a witness to a changing way of life in the Sonoran Desert.

Poppies & Petals & Things That Fly Melody Hamby Goss 2018-05-11 The beauty of the trees, The softness of the air, The fragrance of the grass, speaks to me. The summit of the mountains, The thunder of the sky, The rhythm of the sea, speaks to me. The faintness of the stars, The freshness of the morning, The dewdrops on the flower speaks to me. And my heart soars. These beautiful words were written by Chief Dan George, and they speak to me. This book speaks of mice at play, flowers that talk, stars whose light creates moonbeams on which we ride in our dreams. There are quirky bumblebees quarreling with fairies and even a buzzing aggravating fly. Come away with me into a storybook of rhyme where I live. Welcome to my world. Melody Hamby Goss

Green Poppies Patricia Hickey 2004 When Helena is presented with a lacquered Chinese box containing diaries and letters belonging to her mother, she is reluctantly drawn back to her childhood years. The daughter of an Irish officer in the British Army. Helena's story vividly describes the affect on her family when her father is called up to fight in the First World War. While Helena's memories re-create a complex picture of the politics and history of the period, they are dominated by the enigmatic figure of her mother. Ally, who drifts on the edge of sanity as she attempts to cope with the sense of loss and isolation brought on by the war. For Rebecca. Helena's niece and Ally's granddaughter, the diaries contain vital clues to the identity of the mysterious M. whom Rebecca believes to be her real grandfather. If Rebecca can solve this riddle, then perhaps she will be able to come to terms with the past and its legacies. Weaving together Helena's reminiscences and Ally's own words, Patricia Hickey's fine debut novel is a powerful and lyrical account of the workings of memory and of an unexplored aspect of Irish women's experience of war.

The Botany of Desire Michael Pollan 2002-05-28 "Pollan shines a light on our own nature as well as on our implication in the natural world." —The New York Times "A wry, informed pastoral." —The New Yorker The book that helped make Michael Pollan, the New York Times bestselling author of How to Change Your Mind, Cooked and The Omnivore's Dilemma, one of the most trusted food experts in America Every schoolchild learns about the mutually beneficial dance of honeybees and flowers: The bee collects nectar and pollen to make honey and, in the process, spreads the flowers' genes far and wide. In The Botany of Desire, Michael Pollan ingeniously demonstrates how people and domesticated plants have formed a similarly reciprocal relationship. He masterfully links four fundamental human desires—sweetness, beauty, intoxication, and control—with the plants that satisfy them: the apple, the tulip, marijuana, and the potato. In telling the stories of four familiar species, Pollan illustrates how the plants have evolved to satisfy humankind's most basic yearnings. And just as we've benefited from these plants, we have also done well by them. So who is really domesticating whom?
